KALAMAZOO — Caravan of Thieves will provide an element of rowdiness at Cooper's Glen.

"I don't think a folk festival would normally get a band like us -- I don't think there is a band like us," guitarist and co-founder Fuzz said from his and Carrie Sangiovanni's (wife and other co-founder) Bridgeport home.

With outbursts of dance, crazy percussion, costumes and odd covers like The Talking Head's "Psycho Killer," the Caravan is "more flashy and visual" than most folk acts.

"I always worry that we're going to come off too rambunctious," Fuzz said.

"I've got a broad spectrum of music I love," Fuzz said.

He also plays electric funk guitar for The Tom Tom Club, the '80s dance band that's been making a comeback recently -- that was Fuzz with the band on "Late Night with Jimmy Fallon" Jan. 11.

Kalamazoo got to see the Thieves for the first time in November, at the Bell's Eccentric Cafe.

They had a great time, and are excited to come back, both Fuzz and Sangiovanni said.
